

TETON REGIONAL LAND TRUST
FALL UPDATE 2021

Dear Friends,

I hope you are doing well! The summer flew by for all of us at the Land Trust and the stewardship team is wrapping up one of the busiest field seasons yet. During an average year, around one or two conserved properties change hands. Since 2020, we have welcomed a record 24 new conservation easement landowners to the Land Trust family! This is quite extraordinary, and one of the visible effects of the large influx of new residents into east Idaho that we are currently experiencing. It is imperative that we invest time developing a relationship with each of these new landowners to educate them about their conservation easement terms, while learning about their goals for the property. It is the start of an important partnership that provides the successful foundation for lifelong care of the property.

To help with our growing stewardship responsibilities, we were excited to promote Kimberly Holmes to Stewardship Director and bring on Katie Guetz as our new Land Steward. Our land protection team has not missed a beat either. This year, we have successfully completed four conservation projects, protecting more than 2,500 acres, and bringing our total acres permanently protected to nearly 40,000. The most recently completed and largest easement of the four, more than 2,200 acres bordering the Tex Creek Wildlife Management Area (WMA) east of Idaho Falls, was in the making for over seven years and now preserves critical transitional habitat for wildlife. Learn more about this important project in the latest edition of our newsletter, Our Place. In Swan Valley, a 140-acre conservation easement granted by the Bradford family preserved one of the last pieces of unprotected farmland on Pine Creek Bench that overlooks the trout-filled waters of the South Fork of the Snake River. Lastly, we added two conservation easements in Teton Valley that protect important foraging habitat for Sandhill Cranes and waterbirds, as well as farmland and open space for migratory big game.

In 2021, we hosted a new event: “In A Landscape: Classical Music in the Wild.” The talented pianist Hunter Noack took us on a musical journey through Fox Creek Ranch’s protected farmland and its calming, meandering creek. We took in the vast views and incredible scenery while also reflecting on those we lost this past year. While filled with gratitude for the memories, we honored the legacy they leave behind for us and future generations.

The continued generosity felt all summer was no doubt highlighted at the 14th annual Tin Cup. It was like a lightning strike, illuminating Teton Valley with a bright flash of comradery, generosity, and positive energy. Collectively, more than $2 million was raised by Teton Valley nonprofits, bringing the total raised over the past 14 years to over $18 million. Teton Regional Land Trust had its best Tin Cup to date—it means so much to us, as we can’t protect our special places without your support. It is a big vote of confidence from the community to stay the course and move our work forward to protect as much land as we possibly can.

Probably the most remarkable of things this year was the incredibly generous gift from longtime supporter and Land Trust friend, Richard G. Grundler. His gift will make a truly lasting impact on Teton Valley through the Richard G. Grundler Teton Valley Conservation Fund. Please learn more about Richard and his large gift to the Land Trust in our upcoming winter 2021-2022 newsletter, Our Place.

The holidays are right around the corner and before you know it, the snow will really start to fly. Even though we sadly had to cancel our annual holiday party, we will stay in touch with you through both our bi-weekly e-newsletter and winter newsletter, as well as personal messages. As you plan your yearend giving, we hope you will be thinking of the Land Trust. We still have over $100,000 to raise in order to meet our 2021 budget goal. I hope this fall update and attached membership report with our 2020 financials leaves you feeling inspired and confident to continue your investment in our mission. Your support makes a big impact as your dollars help leverage federal and state grants, and help protect more critical fish and wildlife habitat, open space, and working lands in east Idaho. Particularly during a time of increased population growth and rural residential development, your annual support ensures we can continue to move conservation projects forward, preserving the incredible quality of life that east Idaho has to offer.

With gratitude and appreciation,

Jeske Gräve
